Daughter vs. Mother.

Mrs. Ellen Laueaster, an old negre woman, appeared before Justice Doane and laid complaint against her daughter Mrs. Paulina Vance. The parties live on Hancock street, between Green and Walnut. The old woman complains that her daughter went to her house and demanded a shawl which she had borrowed from the daughter, and had a policeman with her to take the shawl. Mrs. Lancaster, under these circumstances, refused to give it up. Again the daughter came at her, with tongue and fist, flatiron and rolling-pin, or some other weapon, knocked over chairs than the shawl was worth.

SMOTHERED TO DEATH.

Melancholy End of a Drunkard's Ca-From the Nashville Bauner, 28th,

There have, during the past two weeks, een wonderful proofs of the demoralizing effect of strong drink. Its pernicious fluence led one man to shoot and kill his wife; another to stab his life-long companion nine times with an ick-piek, drag her out of bed by the hair, and to crush her beneath his brutal heel, and the third, to accidentally kill himself.

A man named McGill, residing at Carter's creek, on the Nashville and Decatur retired to bed, covered his head over with lankets, and was shortly smothered to He was found dead Wednesday morning, with the blankets clinging closely about his head. He was about thirtyfive years of age, finally educated and taught school for a livelihood. His only fault seems to have been that of drink, the tempting influences of which he was

TERRIBLE AND HEARTREND-ING EVENT.

Thrilling Incidents.

A Sad and Painful Story.

From the St. Louis Democrat The city was electrified yesterday by the elegraphic dispatches that announced the urning of the Stonewall on her passag down the river, with a very heavy list passengers, but few of whom escaped forrible death. The dispatch was read or change, and men stood aghast at the The friends and relatives of those on board gathered at the telegraph and newspaper offices as the news spread abroad, and sadder or more impressive scenes than many portions of the city pre sented cannot well be imagined. There was a yawl, but some of the deck passengers seized it, and, without oars, indiscriminately piled in, and paddled ashore with their hands. From the small blaze on the hay near the boiler deck, the fire spread to the coal oil, and the whole ship was in a blaze. The boat was loaded with bacon and other solidi ties, and the flames spreading with fearfu rapidity, soon found the solid combust

the seene was most fearful. One hundred and fifty passengers, mostly foreigners— Irish, Italians, Dagos, Germans and Amer icans-some with their wives and familie all in confusion grand, trying to save the lives. The boat grounded two hundred yards from the shore; the ponderous engines thumped and worked in vain. The passengers were rampant and wild. forts were made to adjust the bose to the allow it. To jump the distance was fearful, and the leap was certain to be to leap to the great was reintered. tain to be to leap to the grave—to remain was death by burning. Every one was frantic; officers tried in vain to keep the crowd quiet, but the danger was too immiment-the death too certain. The little children clung in vain to the arms of their mothers; the ladies shrieked and fainted too late—the men rushed to and fro, and selfish instinct prevailed, and every one shifted for himself as best he or she coald. Had people kept cooler more would have been saved, but the blind instinct or infatuation of a mob to follow leaders ruled, and the example of the dock resources. the deek passengers was followed by the cabin passengers above. The flames were approaching them, and when so many were jumping into the water, why should not all? Alas, the water was chilly and not all? Alas, the water was chilly and cold, and the bar was only a slight one and a strong current ran on either side. Many jumped, struck bottom and had their feet earried from under them by the swift and treacherous undercurrents; others blind with frenzy and excitement rushed to where the crowd was thickest, and jamped in among the mules struggling and kick-ing, and among the stout and hearty laboring men, whose presence of mind had oft them, and whose only thought seemed on top, in between, and amongst each other. l'uns a sure death was seenred. With everybody the question was "touch and go." impulse got the better of judgment, and reason and common sense that would have rushed for life-preservers and taken doors off from hinges took

A minute after that, both engines working ahead, she struck and grounded on Tea-Table bar, just opposite, or two hundred yards Harris' landing-two hundred yards from the shore. The heat and smoke was now so intense that I had to feave the engine, and I went out on to the guard and pulled off my boots and jumped overboard. While in the water the mute were so thick about me, and I feared they would swamp me, and I then went int the wheel, and just as I got into the wheel the lines on the engine burnt down and started the wheels to rolling over. About three revolutions were made with me in there, and then I got out into the splash-I was there but a moment, when the steam-pipe bursted and gave way, and whilst I was there the only officer I saw belonging to the boat was Mr. Frank Mur ray, and he was floating on a fender. appeared ealm and cool, and I think he is aved, though none of us have seen him I remained till all were taken off the stage plank, and then was taken off, being the last one to leave her. The bundle of clothes I struck didn't support me well, and I went for a ladder. ing the ladder was a negro. He kept turning it round and round, until I thought I would be lost, and I called to him, "For God's sake, don't keep turning the ladder, and we'll both get ashore!" He must have been out of his wits, for he kept turning the ladder, fell off and went nuder. I made a dash for a bale of hay hay bale fe I to pieces. While I was in the water I saw a woman drown right along side of me, but I could not helpher. She was an Irish woman, and had been, a passenger on the deck. The shrieks and cries of the people drowning, or about to go under, were heartrending, and made me almost crazy. One of the most territhe little hands and wrists raised, and thought her last and smothered words were "mother, mother." Her lips, head, body, so soon to be cold and lifeless, were the "strikers." No sooner was the news known that a oat was on fire than far and near, from hamlet and wood, house and barn, every one flew to the water's edge. There was only one skiff on shore but that was speedly brought into service, and nearly al who were saved were indebted for lives to the good man who ran his skiff out. All of the fifteen people on the staging and the engineer, Mr. Fulton, were taken ashore by this skiff. Many of the victims were so weak that they fell faint from exhaustion, and fain would die whe life was so riskily saved to them. They lay upon the bank in their wet clothing, and the landsmen and women ran home and brought out clothes and quilts and blank-ets, and coffee, and cordials—anything and everything that would bring cheer and be of comfort. Mike assured us he was getting down to is work and never felt better in his life he said, that the mistake he made in his first fight with Al'en was not to be repeated next month; that he had underrated Allen, and was then of the impression that he could step out of his saloon at any time

We have seen powerful men, but never one equal to this giant; the museles on his arms stand out in knots as large as goose eggs, and his flesh is hard and solid. In his set-to with Kelley, which we were nvited to witness, Mike handled himself much quicker and better than we had ever een him. The nack of getting away and falling with an unavoidable blow to avoid punishment, which has heretofore been a weak point in Mike's fighting, is now one

Although our sympathies are with Allen on account of the unfair decisions and shabby treatment he received from the Jack Looney party here not McCoole, for we think he was disposed to act fairly, but the outside influence forced him to accept the situation, unpopular as it has made nim), Mike is very confident—and we think has reason to be—that on the 10th f November he will take the conceit ont of the "bloody Hinglishman." The telegraph operators are not generally creeched with stupidity, but, on the contrary, are known to be, as they are, ex-cedingly sharp, into bethat and well-ecucated men. It will not surprise any one, therefore, to learn that their preparations were coolly and carefully considered. Words of warning were thashed along the wires to all the connections with New York, and the pulse almost of the listening operators sitting in e-mens of the listening operators sitting in caucus at their butternes at every station on the line, was feat on the instant by the managers of the

The mechanics and blacksmiths of the Eric on weshamps, at war with Prince Fisk and his cely prime Minister, Gould, for the prompt payment of their wages, have obtained a signal triamph. Determined not to be minibagged any longer by the Je nitical Gould or the conspiring Fisk, they resolved to three out yestercay, and stay out until all their reasonable demands were complied with. When the cock struck the hour of noon, the workmen began to crowd engine house No. 7 which and been their hear quarters since the tinke, and engaged in a lively and goodhumorel discussion on the state of affairs. The action of Jay Gould was severely commented on by all, and every man secured determ et to tight it out on the Jersey line if it took all winter. An impromptu meeting was organized, and a Mr. Tucker, a machinish mometed a table and acted as president. Mr. F. How Corbin Got Held of Mrs. Grant's $12,000.

Special to the Clucknatl Commercial. Washington, October 29.

It is ascersained, on a thoroughly reli ble authority, that the President and Mrs. Grant have ceased all social connection with their relative, Mr. A. R. Corbin, when they re of New York. Their reason for this is until mornin evidently his duplicity in connecting them with the New York gold conspiracy.

It is also ascertained that when the resident sold his house in this city to Jeneral Sherman, he gave his wife twelve he forthwith transerred to Corbin, there present in Washington, on his bridal trip, to be used in a New Jersey real estate speculation. This is the only money ever given to him by any of the President's family, and it is not improbably that he used it for the purpose of conveying to Fisk and Gould the impression that he was he broker of the Grant family.

It is certain that he did convey such an opression to them, and that they were greatly influenced by it in their opera-tions. The sale of gold finelly dispelled t, and disclosed Corbin in all the hideou duplicity of his character.

At half past two in the afternoon barricades were erected, and the insurgents opened fire, which has lasted to he first hours of this morning, in the har rios of San Pablo, in which the people fired in the streets which met at the market, and from the Tower of San Pablo, which they occupied very early in the afternoon. The fighting has been prolonged more in the parishes of San Mignel and La Magdalena, in which it commenced at the same time as in San Pablo, and lasted all the night with great intensity up to ten o'clock this morning, at which hour it ceased, the people, as we are told, retiring by the port near the Tower of Bruil, from which point they crossed the Ebro on puntoons. We cannot to day give more details, but will try to do so to-morrow. Neither can we report the casualties, which, we believe. are very many, and which we deplore, for the blood shed is Spanish Idood, and the blood of Spanish Liberals. On both sides the combat has been carried on with the valor appropriate to Spaniacds. At midday a battalion of Ingenieros arrived, and more forces are expected. 30'CLOCKP.M.

The Seven Thousand Dollar Robbery. This case, continued from yesterday, ame up in the City Court this morning, and excited a great deal of interest.

The first witness called was Mr. J. H. Huber, cashier of the Peoples' Bank in this city. He testified that on the 22d of October one of the prisoners presented at the counter of their bank $250 of their ssue for redemption, and in consequence of so large an amount, in view also of the information he had received from Mr. Joel Blankenship, he consulted with the President, Mr. Hamilton. When Wm. Blankenship entered, he and Meadows were searched by Officer Justa and $2,400 to $2,590 taken from them, consisting of notes of the Bank of Kentucky, Southern Bank of Kentucky, Bank of Tennessee, national bank notes, Treasury notes and one twenty dollar gold piece.

Mr. Joel Blankenship, the loser of the money, then took the stand: lives in Macon county, Tennessee. The money lost by him was about $2,000 in notes of various Kentucky banks, $700 in U.S. currency. $236 in gold, mostly $20 pieces. about $5 in silver and some $4,000 in Tennessee money. Most of the latter was on the State Bank, but there was in the neighborhood of $100 of Union and Planters' bank-notes; there was also a small amount, less than $100, on the Ashland Bank of Kentucky. Of the Peoples' Bank notes he had about $300, a consider able amount in Sonthern Bank, exact amount not known This money he had kept in a wooden box put away in a closet under the stairs, had not seen it for about ten days before the date of missing it. He had kept the Kentucky notes for about six years. The largest portion of the Tennessee he oldtained in 1861, and it was taken between the 5th and the 15th of September last. He recognized a five dollar bill on the Northern Bank of Kentucky, from a hole in it; a five on the Southern Bank of Kentucky; a one on the same bank, torn in two and pasted across the middle; a one hundred dollar bill on the Southern Bank: a Treasury note, No. 5 5.270; a ten dollar note of the Bank of Ashiand, another five on the Southern Bank, from holes in it.

Mr. Blankenskip also identified a tenlallar bill on the State Bank of Tennesce by the letter N. and No. 171s. He took his money from under the kitchen floor, LeClaire No. 2, is announced to leave for laid it in the sun to dry thoroughly, and remuessee river at 5 v. It was, says that journal, shortly after an illness of the Prince Imperial. Fears had been entertained that his life was in danger, and the Emperor, who adores his son, was still haunted by the phantons of the child's malady. "If I had the misfortune," said his Majesty, "to lose him, and if I had been convinced of the impossibility of having another direct heir. I should certainly have put into execution an extraordinary project. I hould have given France the privileges, liberties and institutions of a republic; I should have decided to become the first citizen of high my country, after having restored to it all that the necessities of policy have compelled me to deprive it of for a time in a word, I should have rendered impossible. after me, any other form of government than the republican, the only one which, wisely under too land applied by an energetic power, saits the temperament of the French people. But that dream must be renounced, as a father has no right to destroy his sons' prospects. I shall endeaver to find the means of reconciling two prineiples which so in incompatible—the empire and liberty. My heirs will reign and France will may lose a distinctive epithat, the name of a republic."

A thicago Way of Doing Business.

From the St. Louis Democrat. Alfred M. Waterman filed a petition in the Circuit Court yesterday, setting forth that, some weeks ago he and Thomas M. Buckland entered into an agreement by which Buckland was to sell him 1,000 barrels of mess pork, at whatever might be the market price at a stated time; no pork was to be transferred, however, but if the price was higher at the time fixed than at the time the agreement was made, then he was to be paid the difference, and so, if pork was lower, he was to pay the differnce. When the agreement was made, pork was worth $50 per barrel, and when the time expired it was worth $30 50; and he claims that Buckland is indebted to him $500. A "margin" was deposited with Mr. Crane at the time of the agreement. The whole transaction looks more like a bet on the future price of pork than a legitimate business operation; but such gambling is very common in Chicago, especially among grain dealers.

Hiram Simpson Grant. Washington Cor. Balthmore Gazette. Liverybody is asking what in the world has taken the President off to Philadelphia, to the wedding of Bishop Simpson's daughter? In searching for the motives which could have led to this Presidential visit, the horrible suspicion has been again revived that the initials U.S. do not represent the baptismal names of the Chief Executive, but that his real name is Hiram Simpson Grant, and that he is a relative of Bishop Simpson. Hence his presence at the wedding.
